The University of Oregon requires documentation of 2 doses of Measles and Mumps or MMR vaccines. You cannot register or attend classes until the University Health Center has received the required proof of your measles and mumps immunity or exemption. We encourage all students to receive all required vaccines prior to coming to the University of Oregon campus. Please put your full name and University of Oregon student identification (I.D.) number on all records, forms, and papers submitted.

Before you can register for University of Oregon classes, you must do one of the following:

1. Submit documentation with dates showing month/day/year of receiving two doses of measles, two doses of mumps or two doses of MMR (measles, mumps, rubella combined) vaccines.

2. Have a blood (titer) test, which tests for immunity to Rubeola measles and mumps, completed prior to coming to the University of Oregon and submit the proof of immunity in English.

3. Submit an International Student Immunization form – MMR for a medical exemption stating the contraindication in accordance with the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP) for measles, mumps or MMR vaccine. Or showing the history of having the measles or mumps diseases. This statement must be signed by a doctor.

OR

4. If you do not have documentation of two doses of measles and mumps or MMR vaccines or other proof of immunity or exemption, your options are:
   a. To receive the measles and mumps vaccines prior to coming to the University of Oregon and submit an International Student Immunization form - MMR as verification. This statement must be signed by a doctor.
   b. To receive the MMR vaccines for a fee at the University of Oregon Health Center upon arrival. However, the immunizations require two doses received at least 24 days apart. Waiting to receive the MMR vaccine until arrival at the University of Oregon will delay your registration for classes.
   c. To have a blood (titer) test completed for a fee at the University of Oregon Health Center upon arrival. However, waiting to get the blood test results may delay your registration for classes. If the blood test shows you are not immune to measles or mumps, there will be an additional fee to receive the MMR vaccines at the Health Center.
   d. To submit a Non-Medical exemption; please contact the Immunization Coordinator at 1-541-346-2764 or uhcmeasl@uoregon.edu for more information.

In order for you to register for classes on time, the University of Oregon Immunization Coordinator must receive documentation of two doses of measles and mumps or MMR vaccines or the International Student Immunization form - MMR by the following dates:
